AND NORTHERN GOLD-FIELDS GAZETTE.

CROMWELL: TUESDAY, JULY 4.

"FACTS are stubborn things." In again recurring to the necessity existing for holding sessions of the Supreme Court on the Northern Gold-fields, and the indefeasible right Cromwell has to be selected as the fittest claimant for such an act of public justice, we intend adducing a few of these convincing items for the consideration of the Superintendent, honourable members of Council, and our co-Provincialists generally—whether spread out over the broad Gold-fields of the country, or massed within the busy highways of the metropolitan towns.

Situated at the confluence of the two most important rivers in Otago—the Kawarau and Clutha—Cromwell has advantages far beyond those within the grasp of Clyde. The banks of the Kawarau and its tributaries, ever since they became known as coffers of golden treasure,—a period dating back nearly nine years,—have been sensibly increasing in populousness and prosperity. By the Kawarau trends the route to the famed Lake country. From its emergence at the Wakatipu, its terraces and its affluents form a continuous theatre of mining operations down to its debouchement into the Molyneux; its working enlargement being always commensurate with, and only bounded by, its water-supply; and, now that an efficient system of increased water-power for the diggings is likely to be at no distant date an accomplished fact, it will certainly have added to its numbers hundreds of remuneratively employed miners.

The residents at Bannockburn, Kawarau Gorge, the Carrick Range, and the Nevis—localities noted for alluvial or quartz-mining industries, for their solid progression and extending occupation and settlement,—all look to Cromwell as the natural centre of their position. No ephemeral success, adventitiously acquired, makes these places of consequence; their worth is of long standing and of Provincial celebrity. As of the places named, so also of Cromwell and its immediate environments.

Let us journey from Cromwell up the Clutha, in the direction of the Hawea and Wanaka Lakes. Wending along the river—the swift-flowing, world-renowned Molyneux—the unrivaled Paxtolus of our modern colonising epoch—the mightiest of New Zealand rivers—we meet with land under cultivation, and mining claims occupied, on both banks, till we approach Bendigo. A good road traverses this tract of country. Bendigo is a rich reefing locality; the further development of its alluvial area is but restricted by the want of plentiful aqueous force—that paramount agent in Otago gold-workings. The Lindis here joins the Clutha: it is fairly auriferous, and possesses within its capacious basin quantities of fine agricultural land. Its waters can be diverted for the sluicing requirements of the Bendigo district, as well as for its own banks and flats, and will eventually be made the abode of many persons following mining and agricultural pursuits.

Following the Clutha from the Lindis junction to its source in the Wairaka, a similar evidences of profitable capabilities present themselves; and when these broad expanses of water—little inland seas—are reached, a wide-spreading belt of country, suited for the plough of the husbandman, stretches out before us. Good timber for building and mining requirements can be obtained here,—the forest on the lake's margin producing an abundance of this necessary material. Cromwell and the far-outlying country draw their supplies of timber from this quarter. Nor must the Cardrona, with its valuable deep leads, be forgotten in the enumeration of the places of which our town is the mining head-quarters and chief commercial depot.

The Clutha, from two miles above Cromwell to within twelve miles of Hawea Lake—a length of twenty miles at least—offers no difficult obstacles to navigation. Its minimum velocity does not exceed four miles per hour. Rafts of timber have been floated on its not dangerous current from the date of Hartley and Reilly's discovery down to the present time; and we predict that the boisterous puff of the utilitarian steamboat will yet be heard by the settlers located on its arable flats and in its golden gullies. Boats drawing no more than four feet of water would, unless in extreme cases, be able to ply between the points indicated without danger of shoaling.

All these places above described are subsidiary to and dependent on Cromwell. We shall now speak more distinguishingly of Cromwell itself; and some facts may be used to define and illustrate its importance. Below are a few which we commend to the careful notice of Mr HICKLEY, and hon. gentlemen of the Committee for the administration of justice to the goldfields.

The revenue derived here from the Warden's Court—from July 1870 to June 1871, both months inclusive—swells up to the very respectable sum of £920 7s 6d, thus contributed:—miners' rights, £555; business licences, &c., £247; from other sources of mining revenue, £118 7s 6d. Had land been procurable for commonage and agricultural purposes by the residents, this total would have been largely added to, and our payments for farming leaseshold quite as extensive as those of other goldfields, which in this respect materially assist the provincial finances. At present there are only two such holdings in the district. In this period of 12 months, 42 complaints were disposed of in the Warden's Court; 13 quartz prospecting claims, and 6 special sites for the erection of machinery granted; 213 acres taken up in extended claims; 32 applications for residence areas were dealt with; for dams and reservoirs, 25; for tail-races or tunnels; for agricultural leases, 2; for water-races, 95; for protection certificates, 73; besides other business we need not mention just now.

The cases heard and adjudicated on in the Resident Magistrate's Court during 1870, are classified as 247 civil, and 48 criminal ones—making an aggregate number of 295. The fees and fines for the same period amounted to £281 14s. Truly, facts are stubborn things.

The people of Alexandra have been taken to task by the "Dunstan Times" for supporting the claims of Cromwell at the Supreme Court Sessions, and told in a pitiful manner, not to be forgetful of their own safety, which, it says, is bound up with that of Clyde. They have doubtless been actuated on our behalf by a sense of public duty, as well as by a special regard for their own benefit; for in the natural course of things, Clyde is doomed as the seat of officialdom: its decadence becoming daily more apparent, and its collapse more imminent; obvious even to the indifferent wayfarer.

JOHN McCORMICK,
Proprietor.

Cromwell's standing with regard to the subject under advocacy, is, we think, firmly established, as one of public right and public justice. The sum of £550 has already been voted for a Court House to be built here. This sum, with a little more supplementary, would suffice to build a creditable Northern Gold-fields Supreme Court; and the pressing demands of the common weal make it imperative that Cromwell should be the place chosen for its site.

Skating on the dams beyond the Coal-pits has been engaged in by a large number of persons during the past few days. One great advantage the skaters possess, is that there is no danger of getting drowned should the ice give way, the ponds not exceeding two feet in depth.

A partial eclipse of the Moon was visible here between 11.30 p.m. on Sunday night and one o'clock yesterday morning. The night was beautifully clear, and the phenomena seen to great advantage. About 13-100ths of the lunar disc were temporarily obscured by the Earth's shadow.

Considerable interest is beginning to be felt regarding the approaching election of Mayor. Mr Smitham, we understand, intends coming forward for re-election; and yesterday a requisition to Mr James Taylor was pretty numerously signed. Mr Fraer has likewise been mentioned as a probable candidate for the civic chair.

Forty-five tons of quartz from the Elizabeth Company's claim, Carrick Range, were crushed a few days ago at the Royal Standard Battery, the result being 53½ ounces of melted gold. The Elizabeth Company have since definitely decided to erect an eight-stamper battery of their own, to be driven by steam-power.

The monthly Gold Escort left Cromwell on Saturday, conveying over 3900 ounces from the Lake district, and 1,235 ounces from the Bank here.

A man named William Ryan was arrested on Friday last at Alexandra by Constable Morkane, on a charge of stealing a horse, the property of Mr William Gorlon, Alexandra. He has since been removed to Clyde, where he was to be brought before the Court to-day.

A meeting of the Town Council of Alexandra was held on Friday, June 30. There were present: The Mayor, Cr Finlay, Beresford, and Ratchiffe. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed; and correspondence was read and approved. The account of Mr G. W. Brown for £5 was passed for payment. The Council balloted for the purpose of deciding which of the two members should retire in Clapham Ward at the ensuing annual election, and it fell upon Cr Finlay to do so. Proposed by Cr Ratchiffe, and seconded by Cr Beresford, "That Cr Finlay act as presiding officer for the election of Mayor," carried. It was also proposed and seconded by the same two Councillors, "That the Councillors wait upon the Library Trustees, with the view of making arrangements to throw the Council Chamber and Library Room into one," carried. The proceedings were closed with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

The Railway Engineer, in his report on the proposed line of railway from Invercargill to Mataura, states that the natural features of the country are so favourable that a good 3ft 6in line with the necessary sidings can be made and equipped for £2500 per mile, including a substantial bridge over the Mataura river. The steepest inclination is 1 in 71, and the sharpest curve is 12 chains radius. With respect to the land required, he says that the New Zealand and Australian Land Company having notified their intention of giving the land required for the railway without charge, there will be but a very small area to be negotiated for—the cost of which will not probably exceed £1000. The total length of the line is stated as a little over forty miles.

We have received from the Superintendent's Office a copy of the "Resolutions and Report of the Otago Mining Commission."

The seventh Annual Report of the Otago Seamen's Mission has just been published, and a copy of the pamphlet has been forwarded to us by Mr Gilbert, the missionary. The statement of accounts shows a credit balance of £10 4s 9d at the end of the year. The amount received and collected by Mr Gilbert during his recent tour through the Gold-fields was £91 3s 3d. We are glad to learn that the affairs of the Mission are in a prosperous condition.

The people of Mount Isa have petitioned the Provincial Council to grant a subsidy for a Hospital to be established at Nasoby.

The Mount Isa Chronicle states, on the authority of a private communication from Dunedin, that Mr Carew's appointment as Warden at Blacks will not be reversed, but it is anticipated that Mr Stratford will speedily receive the appointment of Warden elsewhere.

We learn from the Dunedin papers that Messrs Harris and Hewitt, the champion pedestrians, have started on a tour up-country, stopping at Tokomairiro, Tuapeka, and other places en route. It is expected they will visit the various townships in this portion of the Gold-fields.

"How We are Governed," was the subject of an entertaining lecture, delivered by Mr C. E. Haughton, M.P.C., M.H.R., in Dunedin, on Friday, the 23rd ult. The lecturer extracted much fun and some instruction from his Parliamentary experiences—had a facetious fling at the Maori Representatives—talked warily of the policy of the present Government, and generally made himself as peculiarly oracular and genially gay as only Haughton can. He evidently enjoyed the affair immensely: it was a capital joke! The last electioneering campaign afforded ample food for comment, satire, comic illustration, and laughter. Mr Haughton said, "The miners' right franchise was a great anomaly. He was of opinion that they should have registered manhood suffrage,—and was not quite sure that it would not be wise to extend the franchise to the fair sex." The lecture was—judging from the report in the Daily Times—very enjoyable, although occasionally bordering on the farcical and absurd.—Arrow Advocate.

The Annual Soiree in connection with the Cromwell Sunday School took place yesterday evening, and was without doubt the most successful affair of the kind that has ever taken place here. The tables were well loaded with good things, and tastefully decorated, by the various ladies who provided them. The entire arrangements were under the supervision of Messrs Howe and Nancarrow, who are entitled to very great praise for the efficient manner in which the tea-meeting was carried out. We regret that our space will not permit of a more extended notice this week.

Mr H. S. Fish, jun., the present Mayor of Dunedin, has signified his intention not to seek re-election in that capacity. He expresses his conviction that the office should be held for only one year by the same person, and says that at least one, if not more, of the present Councillors possesses sufficient experience and aptitude for the duties of the Mayoralty. Mr Fish goes in for rotation in office, and has announced his willingness to "stand as Councillor for South Ward should a vacancy occur."

Telegrams from Auckland of date 23rd June, report the expected yield of the Caldonian claim for the previous fortnight to be 14,000 ounces. On the date above mentioned the manager reported that the show in the face of the stope was magnificent, there being a seam of solid gold in sight. Eight tons of stone from Toukey's claim, yielded 109 ounces of melted gold; fifteen tons from the Inverness, 31 ounces; and the Morning Star and several others are also paying well.

The question of the validity of Fox's claim to a reward, as the discoverer of the Arrow Goldfield, (formerly known as "Fox's Rush,") has, on the motion of Mr Haughton, been referred back to the Private Petitions Committee for reconsideration. The Chairman of the Committee (Mr Shepherd) explained that Mr Pyke had stated Fox was not the first discoverer of gold at the Arrow, and that no reward was offered by the Government at the time. Mr Haughton's motion was carried by 20 to 13.

In the Resident Magistrate's Court, at Clyde, on Tuesday (before Mr Pyke, P.M.), Mr Wilson, barrister-at-law, raised what we believe to be a new point of law,—and one of great importance in the Arrow and Lakes districts, or wherever Chinese congregate. In the case to which we refer, Ah Sui, a Chinaman, brought an action against Bridget Corcoran, a servant at Ryan's Bendigo Hotel, for assault. Bridget had thrown a jug of boiling water over the impudent Mongolian's face. Mr Wilson appealed for the defendant, and on being called upon to plead, applied that, before doing so, the plaintiff, being an Alien, might be called upon to find security for the payment of costs, and cited authorities to hear out his view. Mr Brough, for plaintiff, declared that he had never heard of such an application before, and contended that the Legislature never intended that persons in the position of the plaintiff should be virtually prevented from obtaining damages on a wrong. The Resident Magistrate thought the point, if insisted on, was a good one, and he was bound to sustain it. He ordered the plaintiff to find security to the extent of £5, —the case to be adjourned for a week in the meantime.—Arrow Advocate.

Twenty female servants, who landed in Dunedin from the ship Wild Deer the other day, were specially engaged at wages ranging from £25 to £35 per annum, one securing a situation at £45. The other assisted immigrants by the same vessel, consisted of two blacksmiths, one brass moulder, one butcher, three carpenters, one cooper, three dressmakers, one engine driver, one engineer, twenty-two labourers (calling themselves farm servants,) one ploughman, twenty female servants, one fisherman, one housekeeper, one sawyer, two day labourers, one shepherd, one sugar broker, one storekeeper, one teacher, one warehouseman, and one weaver.

CROMWELL TOWN COUNCIL.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the above body was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening last, there being present—The Mayor (Mr Smitham), and Councillors Dagg, Dawkins, and Brown.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed,

A letter was read from Messrs Nicholas and Co., through their agent, Mr Smythies, asking the Council to grant them a piece of ground between the coal-pit and the Victoria Junction Hotel for sluicing purposes.

It was resolved to hold over the application for consideration until the report of the District Engineer was made public.

A letter was read from Mr Charles Hastings, asking the Council to grant him £20 on account of his contest for kerbing and channelling Melmore Terrace.—The amount was granted.

The following accounts were passed for payment:—John E. Beattie, £3; John J. Williams, £2.

It was resolved to hold the Revision Court on the 15th July: the nomination for Mayor on the 13th, and the poll (if necessary) on the 21st; the nomination of Councillors and auditors on the 26th, and the poll on the 1st August.

The resignation of the Town Clerk was read, and on the motion of Cr Dagg, seconded by Cr Brown, accepted, with the understanding that he should hold office until the appointment of a successor.

This concluded the business of the evening, and with the usual vote of thanks to the chair, the Council adjourned.

Movable or adjustable horse-shoes have become a fixed fact, and a company in Chicopee, Massachusetts, is engaged in their manufacture. The shoe can be taken off at night, or when the horse is not at work, and put on again when wanted, as easily as a pair of stockings.

WINTER EVENING ENTERTAINMENTS.

(Communicated.)

In our advertising columns will be found the programme of the first of the series of Winter evening popular entertainments, to take place in Cromwell during the course of the current hybernal season. The inaugural performance commences next Thursday night in Kidd's Concert Hall, and from the varied and undoubted talent of the professional and amateur artistes, who have kindly volunteered their services in this behalf, a full house, and a full measure of exhilarating enjoyment may be safely predicted.

Instrumental music, songs, readings, recitations, &c., are the good things provided for the patrons of the amusement; while as a further enhancement of the allurements of the bill of fare, and by way of giving it the one thing needful to crown its attractiveness, several ladies have graciously tendered their invaluable aid. With such fair and potent auxiliaries, success becomes a certainty.

This is a movement in the right direction, well deserving the hearty support of every person desirous of participating in innocent, mirthful, social recreation; more particularly so, when the end intended to be compassed hereby is contemplated—the procuring of funds to be applied to the cost of erecting a building exclusively for the public use of the people. Happily, so far, the harmonious combination of all classes, ladies and gentlemen, bids fair to soon achieve the desired object, and it may be reasonably hoped the time is not far distant when our energetic citizens will be able proudly to point out to the admiring stranger the People's Hall of the picturesquely placed town of Cromwell.

The long, dreary, winter nights now weigh heavily upon us, and any pleasurable method of diverting their tedium should be thankfully accepted as a real boon. None better for this purpose could be devised, or none more agreeably calculated to enlarge and cement the circle of our friendly intercourse with each other, than that afforded by winter evening re-unions of the kind announced above.

Through various of the Otagan diggings—perhaps all—where, from the nature of their avocations, or the force of untoward circumstances, men lead isolated lives, in numberless instances unblessed by the softening, refining, almost sanctifying influences, of true woman's presence, the poor fellows are apt, gradually, to undergo the process of degeneration. This retrogressive tendency, if not timely arrested by remedial measures, such as these "gatherings" often eventually causes them to grow harsh and gaunt, like solitary old trees on a rocky promontory, whose tempest-twisted trunks have been salinly indurated by the ceaseless surges of the troublous ocean. Hundreds of fine able men, full of noble aspirations and of generous emotions, so conditioned, are dispersed over the riparian valleys in which our alluvial auriferous treasure is stored, or perched high up amidst the alpine fastnesses of our golden rock'd mountains; and not a few dwell in and about our own neighbourhood. To them these entertainments may be made a positive blessing, as, by the media, are attainable the much coveted opportunities of agam sharing in those amenities of civilisation, always to be found attendant on the social communion of the sexes. The kind smile of welcome recognition will brighten up the eye, the soft low voice of matron or maid will sound musically in the ear of many a rough bearded, stalwart, but tender hearted digger, who, by these courtesies, may have vividly brought to mind, sweet yet sad reminiscences of mother or sister, or dearly loved one far away! Awkward habits of demeanour, anomalies of disposition begotten of solitude, or restriction solely to the companionship of the self-dubbed "Lords of creation," will pleasantly smoothen down, and curve into gaily stately.

Old time-honoured memories again resume their soothing sway in his perturbed bosom, and after an evening spent at such meetings, he will return to the shelter of his lonely hut, or the society of his mates, a better, lighter souled, probably more wisely improved individual. And not only to the adult will advantages of no benefit a nature be extended: youths, lads, and lasses, can also derive information and instruction, in connection with gratification, through these means. A judicious selection of readings may bring round a result of this description. Eloquent chapters from standard historians, rare bouquets, culled from the oderiferous garlands of the great poets, extracts from the biographies of eminent men, pathetic and humorous passages from the works of renowned writers of fiction: thus the minds of the "young ideas" can be cultivated, delighted, and expanded. Other modes of diversion being, too, at command, we shall have ever present at these assemblages, as Milton sings,—

"Mirth which wrinkles Care derides,
And Laughter holding both his sides;"
so that the winter in a large degree will be shorn of its monotony, and its inclemency a thing not to be at all regarded.

But to make these entertainments truly that which they profess to be, POPULAR, we must have POPULAR prices. The one now about to take place, being the first of the season, the charge in this instance is exceptional, and not to be continued at so high a rate. A shilling for admission is quite enough; and for children, half of that sum. The committee, we believe, mean to fix these lower and more popular figures as the price for tickets on future occasions. By the way, it is as well to state that these entertainments have been arranged to take place every alternate Thursday night—fortnightly. We bid them good speed.

Apoplexy.

What is apoplexy? From the suddenness of the attack and the apparent carelessness of it, the Greeks connected it in their mind with an idea of a stroke of lightning as coming from the Almighty Hand: it literally means "A stroke from above." As instantaneous as the hurling of a thunderbolt in a clear sky, there comes a loss of sense, and feeling, and thought, and motion; the heart beats, the lungs play, but soon they cease for ever. The Romans considered the person to be "thunder-struck" or "planet-struck," as if it were of unearthly origin.

The essential nature of apoplexy is an unnatural amount of blood in the brain; whatever sends too much blood to the brain may cause apoplexy—that is, the kind of apoplexy which seems to come without any apparent adequate cause. Tying a cord tightly round the neck, or holding the head downwards too long, can bring on a fit of apoplexy, by damming up the blood in the brain, or keeping it from returning to the body. A sudden mental emotion can send too much blood to the brain, or too great mental excitement can do the same thing. It is the essential nature of all wines and spirits to send an increased amount of blood to the brain, hence alcohol is said to stimulate the brain. The first effect of taking a glass of wine or stronger form of alcohol, is to send the blood there faster than common, hence it quickens the circulation—that gives the red face. It increases the activity of the brain, and it works faster and so does the tongue. But as the blood goes to the brain faster than common, it returns faster, and no special permanent harm results. But suppose a man keeps on drinking, the blood is sent to the brain much faster, in such large quantities, that, in order to make room for it, the arteries have to enlarge themselves; they increase in size, and in so doing press against the yielding flaccid veins which carry the blood out of the brain, and thus diminish the size of their bores, the result being that the blood is not only carried to the arteries of the brain faster than is natural or healthful, but it is prevented from leaving it as fast as usual; hence a double set of causes of death are set in operation. Hence, a man may drink enough brandy or other spirits in a few hours, or even minutes, to bring on a fatal attack of apoplexy. This is literally being dead-drunk.—Dr Hall.

They have strange chambermaids at Shephard's Hotel in Cairo (says a lady traveller). The one who waited on our room, and attended to all the various duties of the calling, even to the making of the beds, was a Frenchman, dressed as if for a dinner-party (white vest and dress-coat), and having the air of a refined and educated gentleman. It was really embarrassing to accept of his services in such a capacity. One of the ladies, on arriving at the hotel, rang for the chambermaid. This gentleman presented himself. Inquiring him to be the proprietor or his chief clerk, she expressed her wish to see the chambermaid. He politely replied, in the best English he could command, "Madame, I am she."

The following is extracted from an advertisement in the "M. A. Mail," Castlemaine, of Easter sports at Sunloung:—"A grand Chinaman's race, in full Mongolian costume, for a little pig. Each Chinaman carrying weight on a bier on two baskets. Irish jigs, Scotch reels, nigger breaks. A prize for the handsomest man. A prize for the ugliest man, and a present for the fattest baby. The Dunnock slitch of bacon will be presented to the happy couple, neither exceeding twenty-five years, who are adjudged the best matched pair, have been married twelve, and not more than eighteen months, and can solemnly declare and prove that they never had a rumpus."

THE POPULATION OF IRELAND.—Unlike any other portion of the British dominions, the population of Ireland is on the decrease. In 1767 it was estimated at 2,544,276; in 1777, at 2,690,553; and in 1801, at 5,216,329. Till 1821 that the first complete census was taken, and the numbers were then found to be 6,891,826; in 1831 they had increased to 7,787,401, and in 1841 to 8,119,853. The highest point was reached in 1845, when the population was estimated at 8,295,061. At last census it was reckoned at 5,450,000.

COREAN PONIES.—I left the man in charge and went to look at the market, and find the renowned gate. The market was really a novelty, containing things little that should be big, and vice versa; there were ponies for sale little higher than sheep, or rather about the size of a small year-old calf, and the very colour of calves—reddish brown; and bullocks of tremendous size with saddles on their backs, and shoes on their feet—fine animals, surpassing in size, shape, and beauty of action any cattle I ever saw. . . . At our request some ponies were brought for us to see. I bought a pretty young filly for about eleven shillings; it followed the carts like a dog, and is now a joy at home and a curiosity to all. It neither bites nor kicks, goes out and in doors through all the house, lies down on the floor, and rolls itself where it pleases, and feeds out of the hand. This race of ponies is peculiar to Corea; they are miniature horses, not like Shetland ponies, and when well kept, are strong and swift. They are not very well treated in their own country, being kept for carrying burdens across the mountains, and used as asses are in China—Journeys in North China.

JOSH BILLINGS ON MARRIAGE.—Sum marry for love without a cent in their pocket, nor a friend in the world, nor a drop of pedigree. This looks desperate, but it is the strength of the game. Sum marry because they think wiinnen will be scarce next year, and live to wonder how the crop holds out. Sum marry to get rid of themselves, and discover that the game was one that two could play at, and neither win. Sum marry the second time to get even, and find it a gambling game—the more they put down the less they take up. Sum marry to be happy, and not finding it, wonders where all the happiness goes to when it dies. Sum marry they can't tell why, and live they can't tell how. Almost everybody gets married, and it's a good joke. Sum marry in haste, and then set down and think it carefully over. Sum think it carelessly over first, and then set down and marry. Both ways are right if they hit the mark. Sum marry takes to convert them. This is a little risky, and takes a sharp missionary to do it. Sum marry coquettes. This is like buying a poor farm, heavily mortgaged, and working the balance ov years to clear off the mortgages. But, after all, married life is full as certain as the dry goods business. Kno man can swear exactly what he will fetch up when he touches calico. Kno man can tell just what calico has made up its mind to do next. Calico don't know even herself. Dry good ov all kinds is the child ov circumstances. The man who stands on the bank shivering, and dussent, is more apt to ketch cold than him who pitches his led fast into the river. If anybody asks you whi you got married (if needs be) tell him you don't recollect.

The deep lead is progressing favourably. Geer and party, next to the prospectors, have bottomed on gold; prospect, from personal observation, 1dwt to 1ydwt to the dish; gutter, 30 feet wide. The next party, Anderson and Co., are down 90ft., and are waiting timber, the ground being wet and of a drifty nature. If once this lead was thoroughly opened, there would be employment for hundreds of an additional population: may it prosper.

I have heard of a fog so thick that it might be cut with a knife: I think we have one just now of the required density. I intend trying the experiment, and will report as to success in my next.

BENDIGO.

(From our own Correspondent.)

We have extraordinary weather. The "oldest inhabitant" avers that he has never experienced such severe frosts. I firmly believe if Mark Twain's thermometer were here it would perform once more the astounding feat mentioned by him, of coming down off the nail to register the degree of cold. A small one in my possession got down to zero, and gave up business. As a natural consequence, the water supply has almost entirely ceased, and sluicing, quartz-crushing, and all other methods of auriferous disintegration have come to a standstill; so everything partakes of the hue cerulean, producing a very depressed state of affairs, the more to be deplored as this is the month in which merchants' "little bills" fall due, and miners must find the cash for storekeepers, &c. By-the-bye, how is it that this Old-World institution, which, like many other foreign plants and annuals, is totally unsuited to the circumstances of the country and seasons, is persisted in at the Antipodes? Would it not be preferable to alter the date of six-months' bills to a time when everyone is in full work and money is plentiful, instead of, as now, collecting the needful at a time of universal depression, from circumstances over which men have no control? If purveyors for the gold-fields think anything of this idea they are welcome to it.

A public meeting was held on Wednesday evening, the 21st June, in the Provincial Hotel, Logantown, but as sufficient notice had not been given to enable those at a distance to attend, it was adjourned until the Saturday night following. The business was, to consider Mr M'Lean's application for 640 acres of presumed auriferous land at Ardgor Station, and the best means of effectually opposing the grant. The inconveniences likely to arise to the miners if the land were alienated do not at present present a very formidable appearance; but to those who look further ahead, such an alienation, at least without stringent restrictions as to right of entry, &c., it seems to have in it the germs of an intolerable nuisance to the future mining of Bendigo.

The discovery of a quartz-reef, lately reported, by the Rise and Shine Company, is likely to prove the greatest discovery, so far, in the annals of quartz-reefing in Otago. Having visited the reef, I am in a position to speak of its merits. The Company are sinking a shaft on the reef, which is apparently about eight feet wide, but there is an additional width of twenty feet of ferruginous slate and quartz leaders carrying good gold, so that the actual width of payable stone may be set down at from twenty-five to thirty feet in the present face. The reef appears to crop to the surface towards the end of the claim, which is 1200 feet long, and as the range rises rapidly, a depth of 300 feet perpendicular would be reached at the boundary by driving a level from the present workings. The direction of the reef is north and south, thus crossing all the lines of reef hitherto opened in the district. From the position of the alluvial deposits in the gully, it is more than probable that other lodges will be found, running parallel with this one. I understand that machinery will be immediately erected, the company already possessing a never-failing water supply for motive power; and when once at work, I should judge, from the prospects I have seen, that the far-famed Caledonian will have found a rival.

The Aurora Company having been compelled to discontinue the extension of their race owing to the heavy frosts, have turned their attention to the mine, and are now engaged sinking a shaft in the tunnel, with a view to test the reef at a lower depth than has yet been reached.—The Colclough Company are busy getting out stone from the reef, which is, I am glad to report, improving in width and quality.—The Alta Company are taking advantage of the winter to prospect their ground thoroughly.—The Cromwell Company are pushing on vigorously, and are about to erect whins to raise the stone, the depth now being too great for manual labour; their mill, as are all the others, is idle for want of water.

The deep lead is progressing favourably. Geer and party, next to the prospectors, have bottomed on gold; prospect, from personal observation, 1dwt to 1ydwt to the dish; gutter, 30 feet wide. The next party, Anderson and Co., are down 90ft., and are waiting timber, the ground being wet and of a drifty nature. If once this lead was thoroughly opened, there would be employment for hundreds of an additional population: may it prosper.

I have heard of a fog so thick that it might be cut with a knife: I think we have one just now of the required density. I intend trying the experiment, and will report as to success in my next.

LEISURE LUCUBRATIONS.

No. III.

Concerning Vagabonds.

The weather is so disgustingly cold that your "Lucubrator" cannot get his fingers sufficiently lubricated to write an original article this week; but the following, from the Liberal Review, is a very good substitute:

Vagabonds may be divided into two classes—respectable vagabonds and disreputable vagabonds. The respectable vagabond is, in a general way, a broken-down scamp. He has the same intense hatred of honest labour, and the same capacity for swindling. But his opportunities have not been so favorable, or he possesses some absorbing vices. He is often a tippler who, when he has money, cannot keep away from the liquor bar, or he is so vicious as to openly frequent the haunts of vice. He has not got himself under any control, but must indulge his passions at all times and seasons. Thus he becomes known to be a vagabond, and is scoffed and jeered at. But, vagabond though he be, he is not always avoided. He is an amusing companion, for in rambling about he picks up plenty of scandal and news. Those who have not known him previously will lead to believe that he has the riches of a Midas and the wisdom of a Solon. But he cannot keep up the deception long enough for it to be thoroughly successful.

You meet him one day dressed in the pink of fashion; a week after, and you meet him in disgraceful attire. He has an intimate acquaintance with the interior and business of the pawn-shop, and this may account for the metamorphosis. Give him a first-rate situation, and he will not keep it. Nor will his salary suffice for his immediate wants. He lives upon the fat of the land, and runs into debt with his landlady. How he manages to do this is a mystery known only to himself, for landladies are, generally speaking, difficult people to get into debt with. He will also run into debt with all tradesmen who will give him credit. He will raise money on the goods he procures from their shops. For instance, if he wants a pair of boots, he will send to a shop for four pairs to choose from, and then keep the lot. It must be distinctly understood that he rarely, if ever, pays his creditors. But what does he do with the money he obtains? He "stands" champagne and oyster suppers to friends as disreputable as himself, for he loves to be thought a great man, and he thinks by these means to obtain admiration. And then he drinks, and plunges recklessly into the vortex of "fast" life. But it is not frequently that he has money in his pocket. Often when he gets up in the morning, he does not know where his dinner—nay, his breakfast—is to come from, and he would be puzzled if you asked him where he was going to sleep the night. He has to "sponge" for the first, and rack his brain for some scheme which will obtain him a bed. He likes to get hold of a rich young fellow, the sillier the better, with whom he will be so very friendly. He will go about everywhere with him, plan delightful excursions and amusements—and let him pay all expenses. He loves to be invited to a hospitable house, where he will contentedly remain as long as his host is willing to keep him.

Quite a different individual is the disreputable vagabond. He makes no pretence to respectability. He lurks about street corners with his hands in his pockets, and is generally clothed with filthy rags. If he can get a thing without working or paying for it he will do so. He is never better pleased than when he has swindled some one. His miserable state is invariably due, he says, to the badness of trade. One thing is certain—he takes precious good care he will never labour. When he enters a place, ostensibly seeking work, his piteous tale almost moves the flinty-hearted employer to tears. The latter is often so affected, indeed, that though he has already more workpeople than work for them to do, he will offer the wretched creature before him employment, who will smile as if exultant at the prospect of earning an honest penny. It is found, however, that he has had no breakfast or dinner; in fact, has eaten nothing for some days. "Would the master advance him a shilling or sixpence to get something to eat, and he would come back to work in half an hour." The unsuspecting master, perhaps, accedes to this most reasonable request, and the victim of misfortune departs. That is the last that is seen of him! If work is refused him, he puts on a most dolorous aspect, and begs for a few coppers to relieve his very pressing necessities. In either case he safely invests a large portion of what he receives in some publican's till. It is his dearest delight to get drunk. He thinks he is injured because he has not a greater share of this world's goods, but it never strikes his unsophisticated, innocent mind that he has himself to thank.

We are inclined to believe that the respectable vagabond is the most despicable of the two. He is often a man of education, of manners, of intellect, but he turns all to unworthy ends, because he is lazy and vicious. Certainly, he causes more misery, for he has greater opportunities of dueling. But the disreputable vagabond is, in a general way, a brute without culture and refinement, possessed of a kind of cunning which serves instead of intellect. Like a brute he tries to gratify his desires with least labour to himself. Of course, respectable vagabonds often become disreputable vagabonds. It is not difficult to guess what ultimately becomes of both.

Spiritualism in Cromwell.

When one comes to consider the many substantial and not unpretentious-looking hostelleries with which Cromwell is adorned, he can have no doubt of the existence of bona fide spiritual mediums amidst its inhabitants; and, although ill-natured critics might be prone to think our observations verge slightly on the ironical in thus precluding so grave a subject as that of summoning "spirits from the vasty deep," we beg to assure them that we have no such intention. That mediums—or mejungs, as our friend "Josh Billings," of mirth-provoking memory, hath it—are in our midst, and that a seance (as the phrase runs) was conducted the other night in our doughty little town by one of these distinguished and specially selected artistes, popularly yeleaf "mediums," are certainties. We regret the non-uniquity of our reporter, who, unlike Sir Boyle Roche's Bird, cannot be "muchly in two places at the same time," and we are therefore unable to state what actually transpired on that portentous occasion. We, however, attempt to supply our laches in this respect by presenting our readers with a chapter from the inimitable "Josh" bearing on an occurrence similar to that of which we write, and trust it will produce condonement of any seeming inattention on our part. Hear "Josh" discourse:—

FOR A FU MINNITS AMUNG THE SPEERITS.

Bi invitashun i had the happiness tew attend a speerit cirkle in the good old town of Billingsville last week. A long-haired fellerbibi the name of Professor M'Guire, with a face that looked like a sucked lemon, was the midwife ov the okasion. It seemed that a Mister Bloodgood wanted a dispatch from a Miss Jerusha Perkins, who, he claimed, was in the Speerit Land. After the kandels was subdued, and strikt silence ensued, some ov the alfiredest thunups took place on the table. Mi hair begin tew stan up, and i wished i waz out ov the consarn; but after taking an akount ov stock, i cum tew the inferenco that i could knock the spots oph from the whole biddleing ov them if it cum to actoal bizzness. I agreed tew set still and see the whole sport.

In a fu space ov time M'Guire began tew git news from Jerusha, which he ed waz official, and was in the shape ov a letter, and he wud translate it az fallers:—

" May 20th, SPEERIT LAND, 1846.

"Dear Sidney Augustus Bloodgood,—Having a fu spare time tew devote terestial things, i take mi pen in hand tew rite yu a fu lines. I am well, and hope these fu lines will find yu enjoying the same blessin. The weather iz fine, and there iz every prospeck ov krops. I never see the potaters like finer. Dri goods iz cheap here: yu can buy good factory cotin cloth, yard wide, for 11 cents a yard, and hav thred thrown in. I see the Widdar Bostwick yesterday. She looks az starched up az ever. At this junkete there were 6 raps on the tabel, about az fast and loud az tho there waz playing kards and sumbody bein eukered; then awl waz still, and the kandels waz lit, and evrybody sat in awe and amazement. The circle broke up immejately, and i passed out with mi friend, who asked me what i thought ov speerit manifestashuns now. I told him i thought if evrything waz on the square, that Bloodgood had a ded sure thing on Jerusha.

Adventure and Vicissitude.

Australians and New Zealanders, typographers particularly, will remember the familiar sound of the name of Corfitz Cronquist, a celebrity who commenced his colonial career in Melbourne in the establishment of another "character" now equally celebrated with himself—the fickle and once fortunate Mr Shaw, who by latest accounts was in Honolulu. Cronquist's volatile and buoyant temperament soon brought him to the surface, though not in a way that redounded much to his credit, and soon afterwards he made his way to Hobart Town. Finding no scope in the mechanical application of "type snatching" for an exuberant intellect such as his, Corfitz determined to strike out another track, and made his way to Sydney, where he was employed in the capacity of merchant's clerk, but mistaking his master's cash-box for his trousers' pocket, received two years as a reminder of his mistake. After this he made his way to Hokitika, and in due time the appearance of "Professor Cronquist, Phrenologist," was announced. During the flourishing times of the West Coast diggings Corfitz did a roaring trade, but again his income was insufficient for his requirements, and after a short incarceration he made Christchurch his sphere of operations. Nothing could have been more opportune, for the redoubtable A. S. Hamilton, the phrenologist of world-wide fame, was preaching, in eloquent hypocrisy on the organs of "love, affection, patriotism, &c." The "affinity of nature" was too strong to be subdued, and the two agreeing to share fortunes, a partnership was struck up. This lasted a very short time. Being admitted proficients in the not yet accepted science which they practised, the recondite qualities of each were soon laid bare to the other, and their connection ended by Hamilton charging Corfitz with stealing the cash-box containing £60. Corfitz then went to the up-country districts of Canterbury as compagnon de voyage to a well-known geological amateur—a Pickwick in search of treasures—the object being the collection of fossils from the petrifying water in the neighborhood of the Hurunui. He then made his way to Dunedin, and was employed in the capacity of reader upon the Sun; and having made love in a quarter where his overtures were not acceptable, he made a show of making away with himself, but Corfitz was too fond of dear life, and did himself no harm, though he had to appear at the Police Court. The next we heard of him was his being sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Dunedin gaol for uttering a valueless cheque at Tuapeka, but, after a short incarceration, he was liberated on the representations of the chaplain of the gaol (Mr Torrance) late a brother "typo." Corfitz was then completely lost sight of, and the next we hear of him was in the Fiji Islands, and of his doings there we let the Times speak for itself:—

Bi invitashun i had the happiness tew attend a speerit cirkle in the good old town of Billingsville last week. A long-haired fellerbibi the name of Professor M'Guire, with a face that looked like a sucked lemon, was the midwife ov the okasion. ## The Keyless Alarm Lock.

From the New Zealand Mail, a new weekly paper published in Wellington, we clip the following description of a recent colonial invention:—

Our attention having been drawn to a description of an ingenious lock, invented by our old townsman, Mr James Osgood, which appeared in the Melbourne Argus of the 15th February, we were anxious to examine a piece of mechanism so highly spoken of. Mr Osgood, who, we believe, has applied for letters patent in the other colonies, having several of the locks and drawers with him, took a good deal of pains to explain its mechanism and workings, and the manifold advantages. At the first glance, and on seeing the lock "put through its facings," as it were, it suggests an idea that however plain the drawer looks on the outside (for there is no outward sign of fastening to be seen), the inside must conceal some very complicated machinery; but the principle can be grasped in a moment, and the great advantage such a lock and drawer afford to all kinds of dealers who take money over the counter is at once suggested. To the publican, to every description of shopkeeper, to railway, telegraph, and post-office clerks, who, as a matter of business, would wish to exercise a control over their till to the exclusion of everyone else, this lock is the very desideratum. It is a complete protection against all ingenuity of the picklock. After having examined it for a considerable time, we can endorse the following description of the patent from the Argus as being very correct and full, at least as far as the inventor cared to make it at the time:—

A new and highly ingenious method of securing drawers or tills against robbery was brought under notice recently by Mr James Osgood (formerly of Dunedin and Wellington), of 28 Collins-street West, Melbourne, the patentee of a keyless alarm lock. Shopkeepers are so liable to have their counter-drawers emptied of the ready cash contained in them, that no doubt they will be rejoiced to hear of a plan by which their money can be rendered safe from the attacks of petty thieves. Ordinary locks are of no service to persons who require to be constantly opening and shutting their drawers. The new lock has no key, and can be opened and closed as readily as a spring lock, with this important additional advantage, that only the owner of the drawer, or those whom he may let into the secret, can undo the fastenings. The security of the lock arises from the fact that it admits of being fastened according to any one of thirty-one different methods, so that a person who knew the principle by which the drawer was secured, but was unacquainted with the particular method which the owner had adopted, would be certain to fail in his first attempt to undo it; and (such is the mechanism of the lock) his failure would not only sound an alarm, but do able lock the drawer, and completely baffle all further effort on his part to open it. No difficulty, however, would be experienced by the owner of the drawer in unlocking it; he would see at once, even if he should not have heard the alarm, that some one had been trying to meddle with his lock. The extra fastenings would yield immediately to the properly-applied touch of his fingers; and then the drawer would open as if it had not been tampered with. No trouble seems to be necessary for the ordinary opening or closing of the lock. The drawer has merely to be pushed back into its place to cause the lock to close of itself, and the fingers which pull the drawer out at the same time serve to undo the fastenings. A slight pressure from the fingers, on the right spots, does all that is requisite. The knobs or points to be touched by the fingers are placed on the under part of the drawer, and would not be seen from the front of a counter; nor even if they were visible would they give any clue to the mode of fastening adopted. There would be nothing on the face of the drawer to show that it was fastened at all. The lock itself is placed at the inner end of the drawer, quite out of reach, and no amount of damage which might be done to the knobs on the front would help to undo it. After an hour's use of a drawer secured by Mr Osgood's lock, one would be able to close and open it as readily almost as if it were without fastenings.

Holloway's Medicines

A LL CURES MADE EASY

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Bad Legs, Ulcerous Sores, Bad Breasts, and Old Wounds.

No description of wound, sore, or ulcer can resist the healing properties of this excellent Ointment. The worst cases readily assume a healthy appearance whenever this medicament is applied; a sound flesh springs up from the bottom of the wound, inflammation of the surrounding skin is arrested, and a complete and permanent cure quickly follows the use of the Ointment.

Piles, Fistulas, and Internal Inflammation.

These distressing and weakening diseases may with certainty be cured by the sufferers themselves, if they will use Holloway's Ointment, and closely attend to the printed instructions. It should be well rubbed upon the neighbouring parts, when all obnoxious matter will be removed. A poultice of bread and water may sometimes be applied at bed time with advantage; the most scrupulous cleanliness must be observed. It those who read this paragraph will bring it under the notice of such of their acquaintances whom it may concern, they will render a service that will never be forgotten, as a cure is certain.

Rheumatism, Gout, and Neuralgia.

Nothing has the power of reducing inflammation and subduing pain in these complaints in the same degree as Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills. When used simultaneously they drive all inflammation and depravities from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints, and leave the sinews and muscles lax and uncontracted. A cure may always be effected even under the worst circumstances, if the use of these medicines be persevered in.

Erupcions, Scald Head, Ringworm, and other Skin Diseases.

After fomentation with warm water, the utmost relief and specific cure can be readily obtained of all complaints affecting the skin and joints, by the simultaneous use of the Ointment and Pills. But it must be remembered that nearly all skin diseases indicate depravity of the blood and derangement of the liver and stomach; consequently in many cases, time is required to purify the blood, which will be effected by a judicious use of the Pills. The general health will readily be improved, although the eruption may be driven out more freely than before; and this should be promoted. Persevere. Annoyance is necessary.

Sore Throats, Diphtheria, Quinsy, Mumps, and all other Derangements of the Throat.

On the appearance of any of these maladies, the Ointment should be well rubbed at least three times a day upon the neck and upper part of the chest, so as to penetrate to the glands, as salt is forced into meat. This course will at once remove inflammation and ulceration. The worst cases will yield to this treatment, if the printed directions be followed.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, and Swelling of the Glands.

This class of cases may be cured by Holloway's purifying Pills and Ointment, as their double action of purifying the blood and strengthening the system renders them more suitable than any other remedy for all complaints of a scrophulous nature. As the blood is impure, the liver, stomach, and bowels, being much deranged, require purifying medicine to bring about a cure.

Both Ointment and Pills should be used in the following Disorders:

Bad Legs	Scalps
Bad Breasts	Sore Nipples
Burns	Sore Throats
Bunions	Skin Diseases
Bite of Mosquitoes and Sandflies	Scurvy
Coco-bay	Sore Heads

Fistulas	Wounds and Yaws.
